FIRE AND SAFETY

- Cooking is permitted only in those quarters that have approved kitchens. Do not leave cooking equipment unattended. If your unit is inoperative, please report it to the Front Desk.
- Personal electrical appliances (i.e. curling irons, heat pads) will be unplugged when not in use.

- Turn off all lights, television, radio and computer (if you brought it with you) every time you leave your room or when you are not using them.
- Turn the water "ON" and "OFF" when shaving instead of letting the water run. The same when you are brushing your teeth.
- Take an 8-minute shower instead of a 10-minute one.
- During the winter months, turn your heaters down when not in your room. This will help reduce costs and prevent mold build-up.

EVOLUTION OF THE WING

Before we look at the evolution of the 45th Space Wing, it is necessary to relate some background information on the Banana River Naval Air Station. Construction of the Banana River Naval Air Station was authorized by the Hepburn Board, which was created by the Naval Expansion Act of 1938. The station was planned as an auxiliary operating base for the Navy's installation at Jacksonville. Both stations would be built to reinforce the Atlantic Coast Defense System. In June 1939, Commander W. M. Angus (Public Works Officer for the Seventh Naval District) conferred with civilian officials from Cocoa, Melbourne and Eau Gallie to select the site for the naval air station. Work began on the site in December 1939, and the station was commissioned on October 1, 1940. The station supported seaplane patrol operations during World War II. It also supported a PBM seaplane pilot training program and an advanced navigation school.

The Banana River Naval Air Station continued to operate as a Navy support base for two years after the war, but the installation was finally inactivated and placed in caretaker status on August 1, 1947. Normally, the Navy would have returned the property to the local community, but efforts were underway elsewhere to give the station a new lease on life.

In October 1946, the Joint Research and Development board (under the Joint Chiefs of Staff) established the Committee on the Long Range Proving Ground to study possible locations for the joint Long Range Proving Ground. The committee considered northern Washington state (with a range along the Aleutian Islands), El Centro California (with a range down the coast of Baja California), and the Banana River Naval Air Station (with launching sites at Cape Canaveral and a range over the Bahamas). The idea of an Aleutians range was rejected very quickly it would be too cold, too remote and too difficult to support. After weighing all the options, the committee selected El Centro as its first choice for the joint Long Range Proving Ground. Cape Canaveral was offered as the committee's second choice. The choices were approved in September 1947, and the Joint Long Range Proving Ground Group was created to carry out the committee's recommendations.

The California range would have been very convenient for American aerospace contractors, but it had to be abandoned as an option after Mexico's President Aleman refused to allow missile flights over Baja California. The British, on the other hand, were willing to allow missile flights near the Bahamas, and they later agreed to lease land to the Americans for their range stations. As a potential hub for missile launching operation, the Cape was remote from heavily populated areas, but it was accessible and supportable by road, waterway and railway transportation. Aside from bouts of wet weather and thunderstorms, the climate was generally sunny and warm. The Banana River Naval Air Station was only 20 miles from the Cape, and it would make an excellent support base for the Eastern Range.

While negotiations with the British continued, enabling legislation for the Joint Long Range Proving Ground was passed by the 81st Congress and signed by President Truman on May 11, 1949. The British signed the Bahamian Agreement, which allowed the establishment of range stations in the Bahamas, on July 21, 1950. Anticipating those developments, the Navy transferred the Banana River Naval Air Station to the Air Force on September 1, 1948. The station remained in standby status, but it was renamed the Joint Long Range Proving Ground (JLRPG) Base on June 10, 1949. On October 1, 1949, the Advance Headquarters Joint Long Range Proving Ground and the Air Force Division, Joint Long Range Proving Ground was established. The base was activated on the same date.

It must be emphasized that the Advance Headquarters, the Air Force Division and the JLRPG Base were three separate entities. Though the JLRPG Command was established by the Department of the Air Force under the direction of the Chief of Staff of the Air Force, it was a joint services organization. As such, the JLRPG Commander could be selected from the Army, Navy or Air Force. Colonel Harold R. Turner, U.S. Army, assumed command of the Joint Long Range Proving Ground on October 1, 1949.

On the same date, the Joint Long Range Proving Ground Base was transferred from Air Materiel Command to the Air Force Division of the Joint Long Range Proving Ground. As Commander of the Air Force Division, Colonel Othel R. Deering assumed command of the base, which was essentially another command. Colonel Deering was 1) the Air Force division Commander and 2) the Base Commander.

In the spring of 1950, the Defense Department announced the redelegation of guided missile test centers from joint service commands to separate branches of the military service. As a result of that decision, the Air Force Division, Joint Long Range Proving Ground was redesignated the Long Range Proving Ground Division on May 16, 1950. The Long Range Proving Ground Division replaced the JLRPG Command, and it gained jurisdiction over the launching area at Cape Canaveral and the Bahaman downrange facilities. The Long Range Proving Ground Division was given major air command status, and, as such, it reported directly to the Chief of Staff of the Air Force. Its mission was to establish, operate and maintain the Long Range Proving Ground.

On May 17, 1950, the base was renamed the Long Range Proving Ground Base, but that designation lasted less than three months. Effective August 1, 1950, the base was renamed Patrick Air Force Base, in honor of Major General Mason M. Patrick. General Patrick had been Chief of the American Expeditionary forces Air Services in World War I and Chief of the Air Service/U.S. Army Air Corps from October 1921 until his retirement on December 13, 1947. The official dedication ceremony for the newly named base was held on August 26, 1950.

Major General William L. Richardson assumed command of the Joint Long Range Proving Ground on April 10, 1950. He continued as Commander, Long Range Proving Ground Division and (later) Commander, Air Force Missile Test Center (AFMTC) through July 31, 1954. This was a period of rapid expansion for the Eastern Range, and it included significant changes in the Division and Center organizations.

On May 9, 1950, work began under a contract with Duval Engineering Company (Jacksonville, Florida) to build the Cape's first paved access road and its first permanent launch site. Construction on Port Canaveral got underway in July 1950. The British signed the Bahamian Agreement on July 21, 1950, and that agreement permitted construction on the Eastern Range's first island stations. By July 1954, Cape Canaveral Auxiliary Air Force Base had missile assembly buildings, a central control station and four launch complexes to support MATADOR, BOMARC, SNARK and REDSTONE missile flights. Jupiter Auxiliary Air Force Base had been developed south of Patrick to help guide MATADOR flights downrange. By the end of 1954, the Eastern Range had an operational tracking station on Grand Bahama Island, and other stations were under construction on the islands of Eleuthera, San Salvador, Mayaguana and Grand Turk. Range stations were also being built in the Dominican Republic and Puerto Rico, approximately 1,000 miles southeast of the Cape.

On May 14, 1951, the Long Range Proving Ground Division was relieved as a separate operating agency under Air Force Headquarters, and it was assigned to the newly created Air Research and Development Command (ARDC). As such, the Division was equivalent to a numbered air force. In addition to staff agencies for personnel, materiel and finance, the Division had the Directorate of Technical Operations (manned principally by civilian technicians, but reinforced with one Air Force squadron). The Division also had the 6555th Guided Missile Wing and the Base Commander's organization. The Base Commander had divisions for supply, base operations, services, range support and air installations.

The Division was redesignated the Air Force Missile Test Center (AFMTC) on June 30, 1951. Over the next two months, the Center was reorganized to conform to ARDC guidelines. By early September 1951, AFMTC was composed of a headquarters and six wing-level organizations. The resources and functions of the old Directorate of Technical Operations were used to create three new wing-level organizations: 1) the 6541st Missile Test Wing, 2) the Technical Training Division and 3) the Technical Systems Laboratory. The Technical Training Division was discontinued on February 1, 1952, and the Technical Systems Laboratory was discontinued on April 1, 1954.

The 6541st Missile Test Wing was activated with nine squadrons numbered consecutively 6541st through 6549th. Those squadrons were created to operate range tracking systems on the Eastern Range's mainland and downrange stations. The 6548th and 6549th Missile Test Squadrons were discontinued on November 25, 1951, but the remaining seven squadrons were deployed between the Cape and Grand Turk by the end of 1952. They were redesignated as operations squadrons when the 6541st Missile Test Wing became the 6541st Operations Group on March 1, 1953.

Though Air Force personnel operated tracking systems on the Eastern Range through December 1953, cost comparison studies undertaken two years earlier pointed out the desirability of letting contractors operate the Cape and the downrange stations. The first range contract was signed with Pan American World Services on December 31, 1953. Pan American signed its own contract with RCA to make the latter responsible for operating and maintaining range stations and tracking systems as of February 28, 1954. The Air force missile Test Center began transferring property and equipment to Pan American at the end of 1953. In the meantime, the 6541st Operations Group replaced three of its squadrons with detachments on January 1, 1954. Those detachments were discontinued along with the Group's remaining four squadrons on July 1, 1954. Pan American and RCA took over their functions.

The fourth new Wing under AFMTC was the 6550th Air Base Wing. It was created from the Base Commander's organization, and so was the 6555th Air Base Group, which was placed under it. The 6550th Air Base Wing was discontinued on March 1, 1953, but its resources were transferred to the 6550th Air Base Group. The 6550th Air Base Group became one of Patrick's longest lived units. Apart from two short periods (i.e., April 1, 1962 to March 1, 1964 and February 1, 1977 to October 1, 1979), it operated as the 6550th Air Base Group until October 1, 1990. When the Eastern Space & Missile Center was transferred to Air Force Space Command on October 1, 1990, the 6550th was redesignated the 1040th Space Support Group, and it operated under that name until November 12, 1991. The 1040th Space Support Group was redesignated the 45th Support Group on November 12, 1991, and it continues to serve Patrick and the Cape under that designation.

The fifth Wing was the 6540th Missile Test Wing, which was stationed at Holloman AFB, New Mexico. The 6540th and its base were placed under AFMTC's jurisdiction by the Air Research and Development Command on July 3, 1951, but the Wing was a self-sustaining unit with no substantive or long-term connection with AFMTC. Consequently, the 6540th and Holloman AFB were transferred to ARDC on September 1, 1952.

The Air Force Missile Test Center's sixth Wing was the 6555th Guided Missile Wing. The 6555th supervised missile launch contractor operations at the Cape, and the unit's two guided missile squadrons (the 6555th and 6556th) participated in MATADOR and LARK test launches. As launches of those winged missiles continued, the Wing gained two new units, the 1st and 69th Pilotless Bomber Squadrons in October 1951 and MATADORS so the 1st and 69th Guided Missile Wing became the 6555th Guided Missile Group on March 1, 1953 and the 1st and 69th Pilotless Bomber Squadrons were reassigned to Tactical Air Command (TAC) on January 15, 1954. Since TAC agreed to train all other MATADOR squadrons at TAC's own MATADOR school in Orlando, Florida, the 6555th Guided Missile Group was little more than a squadron when the 69th completed its field training in the summer of 1954.

The 6555th Guided Missile Group was discontinued on September 7, 1954. Fortunately, the 6555th Guided Missile Squadron was allowed to survive as a MATADOR research and development testing unit and it was reassigned to AFMTC Headquarters on September 7, 1954. The 6555th Guided Missile Squadron became the 6555th Guided Missile Group (Test and Evaluation) on August 15, 1959, and it was reassigned to the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division (without any change of station) on December 21, 1959. Concurrent with its reassignment, the Group picked up the resources of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division's Assistant Commander for Missile Tests.

For the next twenty years, the 6555th had a distinguished career launching and/or managing ballistic missiles, space launch vehicles and payloads for the Ballistic Systems Division, the Space Systems Division and the Space & Missile Systems Organization. As a Wing or a Group, the 6555th earned ten Air Force Outstanding Unit Awards between December 21, 1959 and October 1990. On October 1, 1979, the Group was transferred to the 45th Space Wing's immediate predecessor, the Eastern Space & Missile Center (ESMC). On October 1, 1990, ESMC (pronounced "east-mac") was transferred to Air Force Space Command (AFSPC), and most of the 6555th's resources were reorganized as the 1st Space Launch Squadron under ESMC and two Combined Task Forces (CTFs) serving AFSPC and Air Force Systems Command. Ultimately the 6555th was deactivated on July 1, 1992 as Air Force Systems Command and Air Force Logistics Command merged to form Air Force Materiel Command.

On September 7, 1954, a major reorganization of AFMTC discontinued four of the Center's five group-level organizations and consolidated most routine support functions in the hands of the 6555th Air Base Group. That action allowed the Headquarters to concentrate on policy matters, long-range planning and overall management, but it also heralded the demise of the 6555th Guided Missile Group and the 6541st Operations Group (Range) mentioned earlier. Though there were many organizational changes in the years that followed, the Center's functional role as planner and coordinator and the Air Base Group's role as base support agency were firmly established. Pan American and RCA operated the Eastern Range under contract to the Air Force for the next 34 years (until early October 1988). In 1988, the old Range Contract was divided into the Range Technical Services (RTS) and the Launch Base Services (LBS) contracts. The RTS Contract was awarded to Computer Sciences Raytheon (CSR) in June 1988, and the LBS Contract was awarded to Pan American World Services (later known as Johnson Controls) in August 1988.

The Air Force Missile Test Center reported to ARDC until the latter's reorganization and redesignation as Air Force Systems Command (AFSC) on April 1, 1961. The Center then reported to AFSC through May 14, 1964. On January 2, 1964, the National Range Division was organized within AFSC to establish a global range capability and realign range management within the Defense Department. Toward that end, AFMTC was redesignated the Headquarters, Air Force Eastern Test Range (AFETR) on May 15, 1964, and it was assigned to the National Range Division (NRD). When the NRD was inactivated on February 1, 1972, AFETR (pronounced "a- eater") was reassigned to Air Force Systems Command and continued in that relationship until February 1, 1977.

The Air Force Eastern Test Range supported a wide variety of missile and space programs in the 1960s, but the demise of the APOLLO space program and the end of land-based ballistic missile development at the Cape signaled a downturn in AFETR's fortunes. While range support for the U.S. Navy's submarine ballistic missile programs continued, a dramatic shift in AFETR's responsibilities occurred on February 1, 1977. On that date, AFETR was inactivated and the 6550th Air Base Group assumed host responsibilities for Patrick AFB as the 6550th Air Base Wing. The Air Force Eastern Test Range's other resources were consolidated as Detachment 1 of the Space and Missile Test Center (SAMTEC). Detachment 1 became a tenant unit at Patrick, and it reported to SAMTEC at Vandenberg AFB, California.

Detachment 1 took no part in the 45th Space Wing's heritage, and it may be viewed as a short-term organizational experiment in an era of budget austerity. The Eastern Space & Missile Center succeeded Detachment 1 on October 1979. The new center reported to the Space and Missile Test Organization (SAMTO) at Vandenberg. Gathering AFETR's splintered resources and adding the 6555th Aerospace Test Group as a subordinate organization formed it. Under ESMC, the 6550th Air Base Wing's resources were reconstituted as the 6550th Air Base Group. Detachment 1's resources became a new group-level Eastern Test Range organization to be confused with AFETR. The new ETR organization requested a group-level emblem in August 1986, and the Eastern Test Range shield was approved in April 1987.

On October 1, 1990, ESMC was transferred from Air Force systems Command to Air Force Space Command in a ceremony at Cape Canaveral Air Force Station. The 6555th Aerospace Test Group remained with AFSC, but most of its resources were placed in Combined Test Forces serving both commands or in the 1st Space Launch Squadron under ESMC. The 6555th Air Base Group and its civil engineering and security police squadrons received "1040th" unit designations, and AFSC Hospital Patrick was redesignated USAF Hospital Patrick. On the same date, the 9th Space division was created as an intermediate headquarters between ESMC and AFSPC.

During 1991, ESMC, the 9th Space Division, AFSPC and USAF Headquarters worked out the details on ESMC's transformation into an operational wing. Following the final resolution of loose ends, the new Wing organization was approved. It was activated as the 45th Space Wing on November 12, 1991. Under the objective wing concept, the 45th Space Wing had four groups to carry out operations, support, logistics and medical functions. Following the 45th Medical Group's four squadron activation's on September 30, 1994, the Wing had the following groups and squadrons assigned:

45th Operations Group

- 1st, 3rd and 5th Space Launch Squadrons
- 45th Range Squadron
- 45th Weather Squadron
- 45th Stan/Eval Division
- Station command offices on Antigua and Ascension

45th Support Group

- 45th Mission Support Squadron
- 45th Civil Engineering Squadron
- 45th Security Police Squadron
- 45th Communications Squadron
- 45th Services Squadron
- Detachment 1, Cape Canaveral Air Station

45th Logistics Group

- 45th Logistics Support Squadron
- 45th Maintenance Squadron
- 45th Transportation Squadron
- 45th Contracting Squadron

45th Medical Group

- 45th Aerospace Medicine Squadron
- 45th Dental Squadron
- 45th Medical Operations Squadron
- 45th Medical Support Squadron

In addition to those resources, the Wing had the 45th Comptroller Squadron (which was activated on June 6, 1995) and staff offices for Small Business, Command Post, Protocol, Chaplain, History, Staff Judge Advocate, Manpower & Quality, Equal Employment Opportunity, Public Affairs, Quality Improvement, Safety, Social Actions and Plans.

There were several organizational changes in the Wing in 1997 and 1998. Detachments 1 and 2 of the 45th Operations Group were inactivated on Antigua and Ascension on June 1, 1997, but they were replaced by Detachments 1 and 2 of the 45th Logistics Group on the same day. The 45th Security Police Squadron was redesignated the 45th Security Forces Squadron on July 1, 1997, and the 45th Logistics Support Squadron was inactivated on July 16, 1997. (Resources from the latter were absorbed by the 45th Supply Flight or transferred to the Logistic Group's Performance Management Division.) The 5th Space Launch Squadron was inactivated at Cape Canaveral Air station on June 29, 1998, and the 3rd Space Launch Squadron absorbed its resources. On June 7, 1998, the Joint Performance Management Office (JPMO) was established to administer the Joint Base Operations and Support Contract (J-BOSC).

On June 4, 1999, the 45th Maintenance Squadron was inactivated and its resources were transferred to the 45th Communications Squadron. The 45th Communications Squadron was reassigned from the 45th Support Group to the 45th Logistics Group on the same date. On October 1, 1999, the Department of Defense Manned Space Flight Support Office (DDMS) was taken off the books at U.S. Space Command and assigned to the 45th Space Wing.
